Subject: Vector Group Media Phone Conference 12-11-01 -- TRANSCRIPT

Vector did not provide a written transcript of the Phone Conference, stating that the information presented and discussed was available on their website. The enclosed was transcribed by a professional transcription service from a tape of the vcall.com presentation, and the transcription (and spelling of scientific terms) was also carefully compared to the tape by one of C.I.'s contracted outside researchers. Where the voice recording was unclear, a "?" was inserted. Similarly, if the spelling of a scientific term could not be found on Vector's website, a "?" was inserted.

In reading through this, I found one instance where Dr. Robert Bereman, VP of Chemical Research, apparently "misspoke." In the middle of page 12, fifth sentence, Bereman says: "And we have collected data on the Omni cigarette." I added the "[sic]" following the word "Omni" to indicate that Omni is what he said, but he apparently meant to say "Advance," as the context of the surrounding sentences would seem to indicate.
